The principle of operation of the Biennale is based on the following idea: to allow everyone to make choices during the four days of the Biennale.

Some landmarks:

The opening and closing sessions concern us all. They will even be open to the public (on registration), broadcast live (subject to reservation) and rebroadcast on a delayed basis. Outside of these time slots, you will be asked to choose between several proposals.

Opening conference: it will be led by Bernard CHARLOT, pedagogue and researcher in educational sciences, honorary professor of educational sciences at the University of Paris 8. He is engaged in research related to the relationship to knowledge and the relationship to school, especially in popular environments, and priority education areas and territorialization of educational policies.

Closing session: Organized in the form of plural testimonies (Laurence De COCK, other speaker subject to reservation), it will be supported and coordinated by Philippe MEIRIEU.

This Biennale also has another bias, that of allowing you at certain times to contribute to the animation. You can also propose, on site, your debate, your appointment or choose to stroll in front of an exhibition, to exchange with others or to register for the proposals of activities and discovery suggested by the Group Accueil de Belgique

In the spaces of living together you can find:

- exhibitions, games, discoveries, walks to arouse our curiosity,
- a friendly space, a bar
- a bookshop will be set up with a selection of the books of the resource persons present, facilitating, if possible, the dedication. In addition, a Reading Table For New Continuing Education will give you access to all the resources of the movements present.
